

TURKISH ARMY TO RESIST LAND ATTACK

Austria and Italy Prepare to Resume Their Negotiations

SOME ODD ANTICS PERFORMED BY THE LATE LAMENTED NEVADA LEGISLATURE

(Communicated.)
Editor of the Bonanza, Sir:—The late lamented legislature deserves to go down in history as an aggregation of legislative incompetents. Not content with taking backward steps relative to primary law, giving us "easy divorce" laws which nobody but a few Renolies wanted; folding gambling dens once more upon our state when every other state is trying to stamp it out entirely; passing horse-racing and race-betting legislation when that traffic can live in no other state; the legislature showed its utter incapacity in other ways. As its work is published and examined its crass crudeness develops glaringly. For instance, Section 123 of the Revenue Law, relating to hawkers and peddlers, as amended March 13, 1913, was amended by the late legislature on March 8. On March 22 the legislature repealed the original section 123 but did not even refer to its own amending enactment of twelve days earlier. They simply repealed Section 123.

A nice question of statutory construction arises. Did the March 22nd act repeal the old section 123 or did it repeal it, as amended by the March 8th enactment? The common and obvious thing to have done was to specify that section 123 as amended.

SOUTHERN OUTLOOK PLEASES COMMISSION

EXTENSION OF THE ORE ZONE MAKES TONOPAH FEEL VERY OPTIMISTIC

J. F. Shaughnessy and W. H. Simmons, of the Public Service commission, accompanied by W. K. Freudenberger, engineer, and Frank Healy, official reporter of the same board, and Ed Yerington of the Virginia and Truckee railway, returned late yesterday afternoon from a trip to numerous towns in the southern and western part of the state. While on the trip, which occupied about ten days' time, three hearings on public service matters were held in Goldfield, one in Tonopah and one in Hawthorne, so to all appearances but little time was wasted, says the Appeal.

The several days spent in Goldfield and Tonopah gave the representatives of the board a splendid opportunity to look into the industrial conditions existing in those towns and they report that a general air of optimism prevails everywhere. Tonopah is delighted at the extension of its ore zone and the discoveries that are being made in the new areas and hopeful of a substantial increase in the price of silver. The town can see only good times and prosperity ahead. In Goldfield much new work has been started and with the settlement of the litigation which has recently entangled some of the producing properties a return of the old prosperous days is anticipated.

On returning home the party came through Yerington and Mason valleys and at both these sections residents and merchants have received assurances that the copper mines and smelter will soon be in running order again.

(By Associated Press.)
PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Despite showers which assisted in the work of extinguishing the flames, forest fires continued to burn last night in many sections of Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey. It was believed, however, that most of them were under control.

Woods in the historic Revolutionary camp grounds at Valley Forge were threatened when dry leaves and underbrush were attacked by flames which started Sunday night at a point several miles away. The Washington headquarters, with its valuable collection of relics, is more than a mile from the blaze and was not endangered. Undergrowth in the woods on the properties of former Secretary of State Philander C. Knox and General B. F. Fisher were burned, but no buildings were destroyed.

The Turks are entrenched along the coast of the Gulf of Egeus. In this vicinity Berlin reported that 20,000 allies had landed. Since the capture of hill No. 60, near Ypres, by the British, the Germans have made repeated attacks in the attempt to regain that point. Jose was near to death from the effects of strangulation. The third brother, Francisco, was left for dead but he released himself, and is supposed to have wandered into the mountains and died.

ILLITERACY IN ITALY IS BEING REDUCED

(By Associated Press.)
ROME, April 22.—Those who are trying to reduce illiteracy in Italy report steady progress. Since 1901 the proportion of those who can neither read nor write, out of every 100 population, has fallen from 56 to 43. The smallest proportion of illiterates by regional division is now found in Piedmont, with 11.90 per cent, and the largest in Calabria and the Islands, with 69 per cent. In Reggio province the percentage runs as high as 70.06. The male illiterates are in all districts fewer than those of the other sex. Encouraging as the progress is, fears are expressed that the European war will detract somewhat from this movement.
